

WORK CARD 2

1. Language school for foreigners

The language school offers courses for foreigners who want to learn the language of the country in which they are located. The course participants include people with various levels of language advancement, from absolute beginners to advanced. The school's task is to confirm the level of language mastery of course participants and to adapt validation methods to their individual needs.

Suggest how and what tools the school can use to assess the extent to which participants have mastered the language and propose appropriate ways to test their individual skills

2. Vocational course for future medical technicians

The school offers a vocational course for future medical technicians who will master a number of practical skills in the field of nursing, diagnostics and operation of medical equipment. Course participants learn theory but practice plays a key role, so it is important to effectively validate their practical skills.

Suggest how and with what tools the school can assess the extent to which course participants have mastered the skills and propose appropriate ways to test their individual skills.

Explain why you chose these particular validation methods in each of the follow situations?
