

Young Economist School Club

The Powiat Center for Vocational and Continuing Education in Wieliczka takes care of the development of personal and social skills of the classes of the Technical School of Economics and the Technical School of Accounting by running the Young Economist School Club.

Social competence

The issues raised during the school club concern, on the one hand, hard skills, enabling participation in competitions, and on the other hand, they focus on the socio-economic reality in the country and abroad. In addition, students learn the principles of rational management.

Another important department when it comes to developing skills needed not only in the economic field is the development of soft skills. Participation in the Young Economist's Club develops competences of independent thinking, working in teams, as well as conducting effective discussions. Thanks to the classes ran during the club, it is easier for students to find themselves in the current, changing economic reality.

In PCKZiU in Wieliczka, those studying economics and administration also have the opportunity to take part in negotiation workshops, as well as in meetings with entrepreneurs, which facilitates the mapping of competences needed on the labour market.
