

WORKSHEET 3

We have an innate tendency to draw such conclusions. However, this reasoning is usually false.

This way of thinking teaches us very little about the world, but we can learn a lot from it about ourselves, our norms and customs.

Only in contact with something else - with different cultures, customs, values - we can see that we see the world in a certain way, that certain things are important to us, and when we do things differently, we feel strange or uncomfortable.

Look at the world through rose-tinted glasses and look at your work colleague differently. Write how you perceived them at first, and how you perceive them now? What changed?

